

ARTS

Graduates of this program will:

1. Analyze data and arguments from multiple perspectives as part of critical thinking skills.
2. Demonstrate ability to speak effectively in front of groups.
3. Use appropriate technology for research, including basic laboratory equipment and including computers with current industry-standard productivity software such as the Microsoft Office Suite platform.
4. Competently perform computations and communicate results in written and spoken forms.
5. Articulate and apply the scientific method.
6. Express an awareness of current ethical and diversity issues.