

EDUCATION

Graduates of this program will:

1. Observe and document essential principle of instruction, classroom management, and instructional methods that encompass the diversity of learner needs.
2. Discuss and apply the major theories of childhood development and learning.
3. Apply effective writing and speaking skills in presentations, documents, and reports.
4. Search and identify appropriate technology for use in the educational environment for both personal use and in a classroom setting.
5. Perform critical thinking and logical step-wise processes in math and science.
6. Describe how issues of diversity may impact the schooling process.