

ENGLISH

Undergraduate Program Information

The Department of English offers the Bachelor of Arts in English and the Bachelor of Arts in Gender and Sexuality Studies.

The BA in English is the cornerstone of studies in the humanities. The English major provides students with personal and cultural enrichment as well as verbal, analytical and cultural skills that are readily adaptable to a variety of careers. The English curriculum includes courses in literature, language, creative writing, technical and professional communication, rhetoric, cultural studies, digital media, and film. Our majors go on to succeed in a wide range of professions, including secondary and post-secondary education, business, government, publishing, and law. We offer four different major concentrations that students can tailor to their individual needs:

1. English
2. Creative Writing
3. Literature, Language and Culture
4. Rhetoric, Digital Media and Professional Communication

Students who wish to pursue English as a double major may eliminate one elective from the departmental requirements. Students are required to fulfill a second language requirement (one year of college-level instruction, or the equivalent).

The BA in Gender and Sexuality Studies is offered both on the Main campus and as a fully online, asynchronous program through NMSU-Global. Gender and Sexuality Studies is a combined field of study that encompasses women's, gender, LGBTQIA+, and feminist studies. It is a discipline dedicated to reshaping society through interdisciplinary approaches, knowledge production, creative expression, and community-engagement. G&SS at NMSU offers students the knowledge and tools to advocate for social justice and make a meaningful impact in various professional fields, such as social work, policy analysis, research, education, and community development. G&SS majors may choose to pursue a concentration in Media Arts and Cultural Studies (MACS). This inclusive curriculum invites students to delve into the rich intersections of media arts (both digital and material), film, cultural studies, and women's, gender, and sexuality studies. All G&SS courses are available to all NMSU students regardless of major.

The department also offers five undergraduate minors:

- English
- Literature
- Medieval and Early Modern Studies
- Rhetoric and Professional Communication
- Gender and Sexuality Studies

The English department provides strong and personalized advising designed to help students reach their full academic potential and future career goals.

Further information about career opportunities, concentrations, and minors is available from the Department of English.

Graduate Program Information

Graduate coursework in the Department of English spans a diverse field of studies in culture, rhetoric, literature, digital media, composition pedagogy, professional communication, and writing as well as a range of interdisciplinary work in women's, gender, and sexuality studies.

The department offers two graduate degrees in English: the Master of Arts in English and the Doctor of Philosophy in Rhetoric and Professional Communication. Students pursuing the MA in English may specialize in any of three areas: Literature; Rhetoric and Professional Communication; or English Studies for Teachers. Through NMSU-Global, the department also offers a fully online (asynchronous) MA in Technical and Professional Communication. These graduate degrees prepare students to succeed in a variety of careers, including writing, editing, publishing, secondary and post-secondary education, business and industry, media, web design, government, nonprofits, and law. Students work closely with faculty advisors to develop programs of study that fit their individual needs and goals.

Students wishing to apply to the MA or PhD should consult application information on the English Department website at <http://english.nmsu.edu/apply/> (https://english.nmsu.edu/_assets/apply.html). Applications are due by February 1st for Fall admission to the MA or the PhD program. MA applications are also accepted for Spring admission; review of MA applications for Spring admission begins on October 1.

Support in the form of a Graduate Assistantships is awarded through a competitive selection process; this application is folded into the application for admission and should be submitted by the February 1st deadline. Students in the PhD and in the MA emphases in Literature and Rhetoric and Professional Communication are eligible to apply for a Graduate Assistantship. All Graduate Assistantships in English begin in the Fall semester.

The department offers a graduate Minor in Gender and Sexuality Studies. This interdisciplinary minor enables students to enrich their academic experience, broaden their career prospects, and contribute meaningfully to their fields of study in ways that challenge societal biases and promote understanding, acceptance, and equality for all individuals.

This option also requires research of appropriate publication venues and a final oral defense of the project.

A supervising faculty member will approve the selected essay, guide revision, and help students form an examining committee, which consists of at least two members of the graduate English faculty and one member of the graduate faculty from outside the department. Students are encouraged to undertake the Master Essay process in the first half of their third semester of full time graduate work, or soon after completing 18 hours of course work. This option is the preferred exam option, particularly for those students who intend to pursue Ph.D. study. Consent of instructor required.

ENGL 599. Master's Thesis

1-15 Credits

Thesis.

ENGL 600. Doctoral Research

1-15 Credits

Assigns credit for research performed prior to the doctoral comprehensive examination.

ENGL 601. Qualitative Research

3 Credits (3)

Theory and practice of designing research studies and of collecting and analyzing data. Emphasis on qualitative methods of research in composition, professional communication, and rhetoric.

ENGL 604. Digital Research Methods

3 Credits (3)

This course will serve as one of the core methods courses in the RPC PhD program, focusing on "digital" methods in rhetorical studies. As such, the aim of this class is to help you begin to gain confidence in conducting research in rhetoric, professional communication, and composition using digital methods. In this course we will assume that digital methods in rhetoric take broadly two forms: first, digital methods of acquisition, processing, and presentation of research data. And second, digital methods of production and circulation of rhetorical objects. The former closely resembles the methods of "digital humanities" while the latter will be closer to media archaeology and "critical making" practices. In all cases, we will relate these tools and methods to key questions and theories in our field, asking how and why we might apply digital methods in rhetorical scholarship.

Prerequisite(s): graduate standing.

ENGL 610. Proseminar in Rhetoric and Professional Communication

3 Credits (3)

Introduction to research in rhetoric and professional communication. Required of and limited to students enrolled in the Ph.D. program in Rhetoric and Professional Communication.

ENGL 643. Multimedia Theory and Production

ENGL 678. Topics in Rhetoric and Technology

3 Credits (3)

Explores intersections between rhetoric and technology, approaches may highlight theory, media production, and/or research. Repeatable for a maximum of 6 credits. Taught with ENGL 578.

ENGL 683. Critical Writing Studies

3 Credits (3)

This course investigates the field of Writing Studies as a distinct field of study, related to but not synonymous with Composition Studies. While debates surrounding the relationships among Writing Studies and Composition Studies flourish, this course centers on the former—investigating writing as a practice, process, and object that merits attention in its own right. Such attention will be grounded in contemporary critical and cultural theory that contests writing as a positive or neutral sign (i.e. activity theory, posthumanism, ecocriticism, new materialism, new media studies; feminist, queer, critical race or decolonial theory). Crosslisted with: ENGL 583.

Prerequisite(s): graduate standing.

ENGL 690. Doctoral Seminar in Rhetoric

3 Credits (3)

Studies in theories of and issues in rhetoric. Topics may vary from year to year. Repeatable for a maximum of 9 credits.

ENGL 700. Doctoral Dissertation
